Edict that waste should not be thrown in the ruined houses around Torre di Nona

Alessandro Muti and Lorenzo Altieri, Masters of the Streets of this beloved city and its district.

By this present edict we order and command each and every person that from now on, under penalty of fifty scudi and other corporal punishments, he not dare to throw away nor have thrown away any kind of waste whatsoever in the ruined houses near Torre di Nona, on the bank of the Tiber, because from [such actions] result ugliness and stench for the City. We note that in punishing [this behavior] we shall act with complete rigor. Issued 20 May 1609.
